instruments in your portfolio may differ from the overall risk ratio (being above or below the portfolio risk ratio), as long as the overall risk ratio stays below the calculated ratio.

Additionally you can adjust your risk limits by selecting the individual financial instruments accordingly. By defining a top and bottom risk limit for every individual financial instrument you generally exclude all above or below that risk category. If you have defined such limits you can only order financial instruments above or below the selected risk categories if you issue an instruction or after a respective instruction and confirmation.
